Chautauqua Program Almost Completed

President Billings has almost completed the program for the Chautauqua to be opened on July 7 and continuing for ten days. The dates have been definitely arranged with practically all the speakers and amusement people, and within a few days replies are expected for the unfilled dates. The entire program is almost ready for the printer and by the first of next week will be placed in the hands of the printer.

The program this year promises to be one of the most entertaining and instructive ever presented to the people and embraces every form of educational entertainment, including some of the foremost platform lecturers in the world.

The capacity of the camping facilities will probably be taxed to full capacity. Already President Billings is being asked for reservations and he expects before the first of the month to have the camping grounds well assigned. Those who desire to secure camping sites should make their intentions known as soon as possible.

The Chicago Glee Club, to appear July 7 and 8, is one of the finest of its kind on the Chautauqua and lyceum circuits. As a male quartet the club remains unsurpassed. The personnel has been unchanged in thirteen consecutive seasons. They have introduced the trombone quartet. The trombone is "king" of wind instruments and the effect of the four, as played by these artists, is a revelation of sweet tonal quality and organ-like volume. Such selections as the Pilgrims' Chorus from Tannhauser by Wagner, the quartet from Rigolette by Verdi and the March Militaire by Schubert appeal to the most critical, while lighter selections lend a desirable variety. Mr. Dixon, one of the club, is a reader of great ability. All his character impersonations are present in his makeups. His types are taken from life—wholesome, refreshing, real, never overdrawn or exaggerated.

Another of the high-grade musical attractions to appear in the coming Chautauqua assembly is the Castle Square Entertainers, July 15. Their repertoire is extensive, and comprises selections which have won favor from musical critics and from popular audiences. A number of humorous songs, full of life and action, enliven their program, which is replete with quartets, duos, trios, solos, whistling solos, readings, Irish monologues, etc., making a great variety of entertaining specialty features. The company comprises a first-class popular male quartet, each one a soloist well schooled in dramatic art, an entertaining reader, a superb whistling soloist, and Irish monologist and two pianists, so they are prepared to build a program of unusual variety and interest. Mr. Wardell, the reader, is equally at home in the dramatic fire of "The Witch Song" or in the rapid humor of "Sofie Jackowowski," and the dash and sparkle of his humorous work is unusually effective. Mr. Thornburg presents an attractive novelty in his whistling solos. He is a thoroughly educated musician and has arranged some of the numbers presented by the company. Mr. Humphrey, as tenor soloist, does some especially good work in his well-chosen selections, rendered with careful attention to the dramatic side of the singer's art. Mr. Grant, the basso, has a splendid voice and a delightfully entertaining Irish brouge, both of which he uses with great effect in his dashing monologue of Irish folk songs and witticisms, and never fails to arouse enthusiasm. The Castle Square Entertainers, on account of their great versatility, are particularly well adapted to Chautauqua work. Their repertoire is sufficient for a week, without repeating a number.
